

MAEE

Smarter than ever.

More qualified education candidates at a single event.

Very smart.

What happens when school systems are able to meet thousands of talented education majors in just a couple of days?

What happens when the bulk of Job Fair students are local, already based in your area, and comfortable with the area?

What happens when a Job Fair occurs right in the middle of a conference, where targeted presentations and regional colleagues deliver ideas for “hard to fill” positions and other thorny issues?

You're able to match job openings with enthusiastic teacher candidates — while increasing your effectiveness —in record time.

Take a fresh look at MAEE, the professional organization for Mid-Atlantic school system personnel administrators, school district recruiters, and college and university career services professionals. For details on MAEE's combined job fair and conference and for a membership application, go to MAEE's new combined Annual Job Fair & Conference is different from the typical large, national event. Because our focus is on the Mid-Atlantic area, prospects already know and like the general region, so they're more willing to accept a position here, and less likely to feel dislocated later on. MAEE's event also uniquely brings together both sides of the equation needed for long-term recruitment solutions — college/university career development professionals and school system recruiters. Yet the event's smaller, friendly environment makes it easy to meet people who can lead you to new ideas.

Mid-Atlantic Association for Employment in Education builds the skills, knowledge, networks, and success of professionals responsible for developing and recruiting public and private school teachers in DE, DC, MD, NJ, NY, PA, VA and WV.
